MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1985 (LEGISLATIVE DAY OF JANUARY 3, 1985)

TREATY RECEIVED DURING RECESS OF THE SENATE

Under authority of the order the the Senate of January 3, 1985,

A treaty (Radio Regulations Revision) was transmitted to the Secretary of the Senate by the President of the United States on January 4, 1985.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Simpson and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the 1983 Partial Revision of the Radio Regulations and a Final Protocol (Treaty Document 99-1), transmitted to the Senate by the President of the United States on January 4, 1985, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, JANUARY 4, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the 1983 Partial Revision of the Radio Regulations (Geneva, 1979) and a Final Protocol, signed on behalf of the United States at Geneva on March 18, 1983.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the 1983 Partial Revision.

The 1983 Revision constitutes a partial revision of the Radio Regulations (Geneva, 1979) to which the United States is a party. The primary purpose of the present revision is to update the existing Regulations to take into account introduction of advanced techniques for maritime mobile, distress and safety communications. The Revision is consistent with the proposals of and positions taken by the United States at the 1983 World Administrative Radio Conference for the Mobile Services of the International Telecommunication Union.

At the time of signature, the United States Delegation submitted a statement countering an unfounded political allegation of Cuba. The specific statement, with reason, is given in the report of the Department of State.

The 1983 Partial Revision of the Radio Regulations will enter into force on January 15, 1985 for Governments that, by that date, have notified the Secretary General of the International Telecommunication Union of their approval thereof. I believe that the United States should become a party to the 1983 Partial Revision as soon as possible, and it is my hope that the Senate will take early action on this matter and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Simpson and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business to take up the following nomination on the Executive Calendar:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Edwin Meese III, of California, to be Attorney General.

TREATY REFERRED

Pending debate,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from a treaty with Canada concerning Pacific Salmon (Treaty Doc. No. 99-2), transmitted to the Senate by the President of the United States on February 12, 1985, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, JANUARY 12, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, the Treaty between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Canada Concerning Pacific Salmon, with annexes and a related Memorandum of Understanding, signed at Ottawa January 28, 1985. I also transmit for the information of the Senate the report of the Department of State. This treaty would establish a basis for bilateral cooperation in salmon management, research, and enhancement on the west coast of North America. It will enter into force upon exchange of instruments of ratification.

The treaty would establish a bilateral commission with coastwide responsibilities for management of 'intercepting' salmon fisheries, fisheries of one Party that harvest fish which spawn in the waters of the other Party. These responsibilities would include management of the fisheries on Fraser River sockeye and pink salmon, now governed by the Convention for the Protection, Preservation, and Extension of the Salmon Fishery of the Fraser River System, signed at Washington May 26, 1930, entered into force July 28, 1937, as amended. That convention would be superseded by this treaty. An annex to this treaty would prescribe specific fishery regimes, establishing allocations, annual catch levels, and broad regulations by time, area, or gear for (1) transboundary rivers, (2) the northern boundary area, (3) chinook, (4) Fraser River pink and sockeye, (5) southern coho, and (6) southern chum.

This treaty represents the culmination of fourteen years of negotiations on this issue. It establishes a basis for bilateral cooperation on management, research, and enhancement of salmon stocks throughout the west coast of North America. This treaty provides a framework that will enable us to conserve this precious resource. The increases in salmon production made possible by this treaty will inure to the benefit of fishermen of both the United States and Canada.

I recommend that the Senate give early consideration to the treaty and give its advice and consent to ratification of the treaty, including its annexes and related Memorandum of Understanding.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the Tax Convention with Barbados (Treaty Doc. No. 99-3), transmitted to the Senate today by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 25, 1985,

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to ratification, the Convention between the United States of America and Barbados for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income ('the Convention'), together with an exchange of notes, signed at Bridgetown on December 31, 1984. I also transmit the report of the Department of State on the Convention.

The Convention, in general, follows the pattern of other United States income tax treaties and the current draft United States Model Income Tax Convention, but deviates from the model in certain respects to reflect Barbados' status as a developing country.

Among the principal features of the Convention are provisions to prevent third-country residents from taking unwarranted advantage of the treaty. The Convention also establishes maximum rates of tax at source on payments of dividends, interest, and royalties.

The exchange of notes indicates the willingness of the United States Government to reopen discussions, should circumstances change, which would permit the inclusion of additional provisions to create incentives to promote the flow of United States investment to Barbados.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to this matter, and give advice and consent to ratification of the Convention, together with the related exchange of notes.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the Convention be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1985 (LEGISLATIVE DAY OF FEBRUARY 18, 1985)

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from a Protocol to the Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (Treaty Doc. No. 99-4), which was transmitted to the Senate by the President of the United States on March 14, 1985; and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 14, 1985,

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, the Protocol agreed upon July 10, 1984 by the Conference of Plenipotentiaries of the Contracting Parties to the International Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT). The Protocol was signed by the United States on September 10, 1984. It will enter into force following ratification by all Contracting Parties of the ICCAT. Also transmitted for the information of the Senate is the report of the Department of State with respect to the Protocol.

The Protocol would amend the ICCAT to permit intergovernmental economic integration organizations, such as the European Economic Community (EEC), to become Contracting Parties to the ICCAT on behalf of their member States. The ICCAT, which seeks to promote the conservation of tuna and tuna-like fish in the Atlantic Ocean, now provides only for the accession of individual States as Contracting Parties.

Once the Protocol has entered into force, it is anticipated that the EEC will take necessary steps to become a Contracting Party. At that time France will withdraw from the ICCAT. These actions are intended to recognize the competence of the EEC over fisheries matters on behalf of its member States and is consistent with the long-standing support of the United States for the process of European integration embodied by the EEC.

Ratification by the United States will be necessary before the Protocol can enter into force, as the Protocol stipulates that all Contracting Parties must ratify the agreement in order for its provisions to take effect.

I recommend that the Senate give early consideration to the Protocol and give its advice and consent to ratification.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from a Protocol Amending the Interim Convention on North Pacific Fur Seals between the United States, Canada, Japan, and the Soviet Union, signed at Washington on October 12, 1984 (Treaty Doc. No. 99-5), which was transmitted to the Senate today by the President of the United States; and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 20, 1985,

To the Senate of the United States:

I am pleased to transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to ratification, the Protocol Amending the Interim Convention on Conservation of North Pacific Fur Seals between the United States, Canada, Japan, and the Soviet Union, signed at Washington on October 12, 1984. I am also transmitting for the information of the Senate (1) a related statement of concerns, and (2) the report of the Department of State on the Protocol.

The Interim Convention was signed in 1957 and replaced an earlier convention concerning fur seals dating back to 1911. Under these conventions, the herds were protected and managed, and though there has been a decrease in recent years, the population has increased significantly from 300,000 seals at the turn of the century to approximately 1.2 million presently. The Interim Convention has been extended previously in 1963, 1969, 1976, and 1980. This Protocol provides for the extension of the Interim Convention for four years until 1988. Accompanying the Protocol for purposes of information is a statement of concerns signed by the four Governments.

I urge the Senate to consider this matter at an early date and give its advice and consent to ratification of the Protocol.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the Protocol be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the International Telecommunication Convention (Nairobi, 1982) (Treaty Doc. 99-6), transmitted to the Senate today by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, MAY 15, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

With the view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the International Telecommunication Convention, with annexes, and a Final Protocol, signed at Nairobi on November 6, 1982.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the Convention.

The International Telecommunication Convention (Nairobi, 1982) abrogates and replaces, in relations between Contracting Governments, the International Telecommunication Convention (Malaga-Torremolinos, 1973) to which the United States is a party.

The International Telecommunication Convention is the basic instrument of the International Telecommunication Union, which provides the framework for the orderly conduct of international telecommunications. It is in the public and commercial interest of the United States to continue to play an active role within this framework.

The International Telecommunication Convention entered into force on January 1, 1984, for governments that have deposited their instrument of ratification or accession, by diplomatic channel through the intermediary of the Government of Switzerland, with the Secretary General of the International Telecommunication Union.

I believe that the United States should become a party to the International Telecommunication Convention (Nairobi, 1982), and it is my hope that the Senate will take timely action on this matter and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to acceptance, an amendment to Article VI, paragraph A.1 of the Statute of the International Atomic Energy Agency, as amended. The amendment was recommended unanimously by the Board of Governors of the Agency on June 6, 1984, and approved by the Agency's General Conference on September 27, 1984. I also transmit the report of the Department of State on the amendment.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

The amendment, if approved by two-thirds of the members of the Agency, will increase from nine to ten the members of the Agency designated for a seat on the Board of Governors by virtue of their status as most advanced in the technology of the atomic energy without regard to geographical distribution. This expansion will accommodate the entry of the People's Republic of China into the organization, which occurred on January 1, 1984. Under the amendment, the People's Republic of China will be able to occupy a seat on the Board of Governors without displacing any other of the designated members (currently these are Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Egypt, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, India, Japan, the USSR, the United Kingdom, and the United States).

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to this matter, and give advice and consent to acceptance by the United States of the amendment to Article VI, paragraph A.1 of the Statute, as amended.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the Supplementary Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the United Kingdom, with Annex, signed at Washington on June 25, 1985 (Treaty Document 99-8), transmitted to the Senate today by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, JULY 17, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Supplementary Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the United Kingdom, with annex, signed at Washington on June 25, 1985.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the Supplementary Treaty.

The Supplementary Treaty adds to and amends the Extradition Treaty between the United States and the United Kingdom, signed at London on June 8, 1972.

It represents a significant step in improving law enforcement cooperation and combatting terrorism, by excluding from the scope of the political offense exception serious offenses typically committed by terrorists, e.g., aircraft hijacking and sabotage, crimes against diplomats, hostage taking, and other heinous acts such as murder, manslaughter, malicious assault, and certain serious offenses involving firearms, explosives, and damage to property.

The Supplementary Treaty, in addition to narrowing the application of the political offense exception to extradition, will also help improve implementation of the current Extradition Treaty in several other respects. I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Supplementary Treaty and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer (Treaty Document 99-9), transmitted to the Senate by the President of the United States on September 4, 1985, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, SEPTEMBER 4, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, the Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer.

The report of the Department of State, the final act of the conference that adopted the Convention, and an environmental assessment and finding of no significant impact are enclosed for the information of the Senate. The Convention provides a foundation for global multilateral undertakings to protect the environment and public health from the potential adverse effects of depletion of stratospheric ozone. The Convention addresses this important environmental issue primarily by providing for international cooperation in research and exchange of information. It could also serve as a framework for the negotiation of possible protocols containing harmonized regulatory measures that might in the future be considered necessary to protect this critical global resource.

The Convention, which was negotiated and adopted under the auspices of the United Nations Environment Program (UNEP), will be an important step toward protecting and enhancing public health and the quality of the global environment. The United States played a leading role in the negotiation of the Convention. Expedient ratification by the United States will demonstrate our continued commitment to progress on this significant environmental issue.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Convention and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1985 (LEGISLATIVE DAY OF SEPTEMBER 9, 1985)

TREATY RECEIVED

The Presiding Officer laid before the Senate a message from the President of the United States transmitting a Tax Convention with Sri Lanka.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from a Tax Convention with Sri Lanka (Treaty Document 99-10), which was transmitted to the Senate today by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, OCTOBER 2, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith for Senate advice and consent to ratification the Convention between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income, signed at Colombo on March 14, 1985. I also transmit the report of the Department of State on the Convention.

The Convention is the first income tax treaty to be negotiated between the United States and Sri Lanka. It is based on model income tax treaties developed by the Department of the Treasury and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. The Convention deviates from these models, however, in several significant respects, as indicated in the attached report of the Department of State, to reflect Sri Lanka's status as a developing country. These deviations generally provide for broader source country right to tax than is found in the model treaties.

Among the principal features of the Convention are provisions to prevent third-country residents from taking unwarranted advantage of the treaty. Also included are the usual articles on nondiscrimination, mutual agreement, and exchange of information.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Convention and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction (Treaty Doc. 99-11), which was transmitted to the Senate on October 30, 1985, by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, OCTOBER 30, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith a certified copy of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, adopted on October 24, 1980 by the Fourteenth Session of the Hague Conference on Private International Law and opened for signature on October 25, 1980.

The Convention is designed to secure the prompt return of children who have been abducted from their country of habitual residence or wrongfully retained outside that country. It also seeks to facilitate the exercise of visitation rights across international borders. The Convention reflects a worldwide concern about the harmful effects on children of parental kidnapping and a strong desire to fashion an effective deterrent to such conduct.

The Convention's approach to the problem of international child abduction is a simple one. The Convention is designed promptly to restore the factual situation that existed prior to a child's removal or retention. It does not seek to settle disputes about legal custody rights, nor does it depend upon the existence of court orders as a condition for returning children. The international abductor is denied legal advantage from the abduction to or retention in the country where the child is located, as resort to the Convention is to effect the child's swift return to his or her circumstances before the abduction or retention. In most cases this will mean return to the country of the child's habitual residence where any dispute about custody rights can be heard and settled.

The Convention calls for the establishment of a Central Authority in every Contracting State to assist applicants in securing the return of their children or in exercising their custody or visitation rights, and to cooperate and coordinate with their counterparts in other countries toward these ends. Moreover, the Convention establishes a judicial remedy in wrongful removal or retention cases which permits an aggrieved parent to seek a court order for the prompt return of the child when voluntary agreement cannot be achieved. An aggrieved parent may pursue both of these courses of action or seek a judicial remedy directly without involving the Central Authority of the country where the child is located.

The Convention would represent an important addition to the State and Federal laws currently in effect in the United States that are designed to combat parental kidnapping - specifically, the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act now in effect in every State in the country, the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act of 1980, the 1982 Missing Children Act and the Missing Children's Assistance Act. It would significantly improve the chances a parent in the United States has of recovering a child from a foreign Contracting State. It also provides a clear-cut method for parents abroad to apply for the return of children who have been wrongfully taken to or retained in this country. In short, by establishing a legal right and streamlined procedures for the prompt return of internationally abducted children, the Convention should remove many of the uncertainties and the legal difficulties that now confront parents in international child abduction cases.

Federal legislation will be submitted to provide for the smooth implementation of the Convention within the United States. This legislation will be consistent with the spirit and intent of recent congressional initiatives dealing with the problem of interstate child abduction and missing children.

United States ratification of the Convention is supported by the American Bar Association. The authorities of many States have indicated a willingness to do their part to assist the Federal government in carrying out the mandates of the Convention.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Convention and accord its advice and consent to ratification, subject to the reservations described in the accompanying report of the Secretary of State.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.

SEQUENTIAL REFERRAL—GOULD NOMINATION

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the nomination of George D. Gould, of New York, to be Under Secretary of the Treasury, be sequentially referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs for a period not to extend beyond November 15, 1985.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1985 (LEGISLATIVE DAY OF NOVEMBER 4, 1985)

TREATY REFERRED

As in executive session,

On request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the 1984 Protocols amending the Civil Liability and Fund Conventions on Oil Pollution Damage (Treaty Doc. 99-12), which were transmitted to the Senate on November 5, 1985, by the President of the United States, and the letter of transmittal was read as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, NOVEMBER 5, 1985.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, the Protocol of 1984 to Amend the International Convention on Civil Liability for Oil Pollution Damage, 1969 (Civil Liability Convention) and the Protocol of 1984 to Amend the International Convention on the Establishment of an International Fund for Compensation for Oil Pollution Damage, 1971 (Fund Convention). The Department of State has prepared a Technical Report on the Protocols, which is attached for information of the Senate.

The 1984 Protocols to the Civil Liability and Fund Conventions are intended to revise and update the international system of liability and compensation for damage caused by vessel source oil pollution. In light of worldwide experience with costly oil spills since the conventions were first negotiated, they both required substantial amendment to raise their liability and compensation limits. The maximum liability and compensation limits contained in the new Protocols are approximately four times higher than in the original conventions and are now deemed sufficient to compensate all legitimate claimants with regard to any oil spill likely to occur in waters off the coasts of the United States. These new limits would provide substantially greater levels of compensation for United States citizens who sustain oil pollution damage than is currently available under existing domestic statutes or voluntary industry mechanisms.

A United States understanding of the term 'pollution damage' and declarations by which the United States would exercise the option under the Protocols to delay the effective date of our instruments of ratification, are included in the Technical Report of the Department of State for consideration of the Senate. If approved, these declarations and understanding would be appended to the United States instruments of ratification.

Expedition ratification of the 1984 Protocols would demonstrate not only our interest in assuring compensation for United States citizens who sustain oil pollution damage, but also our commitment to higher, uniform international standards for mitigating such damage which can be generally accepted worldwide.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the 1984 Protocols to the Civil Liability and Fund Conventions and give its advice and consent to ratification.

RONALD REAGAN

On further request by Mr. Dole and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, that the protocols be considered as having been read the first time; that they be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the Record.
